PARKER DAY TODAY.
WE STRONGLY ADVISE people who have been saying that the genus Democrat has become extinct in Utah to visit Saitair today and observe how far wrong they are. From all over the state the Democratic hosts are to gather to celebrate Parker day and to ratify the nomination of the nation's next president. The Democrats are going out with their wives and their children, their mothers and their sweethearts and the welkin, whatever that may be, is going to ring with true Democratic doctrine.

Every Democrat should be there.
Most of them probably will be there. It is good for the brethren to get together on occasion, to renew their fealty to the party, to drink again from the good old Democratic well, to be reassured, as it were, in the living waters of eternal Democratic truth. Pack your lunch basket, take a train at any one of the numerous hours at which trains will be run and visit Saitair today.

There will be many things besides speeches. On a hot day when every emerald waftlet is purring an invitation to come to its arms and be comforted, even Democratic speeches should be short. Those scheduled for today will be short. The main thing is the getting together again, the taking advantage of the opportunity to show our Republican friends that there is still, not a few, but a great many of us left in this good old state.

All aboard for Saitair.
DEATH OF P. C. WEBER.
THE SUDDEN DEATH OF Peter C.
Weber at his home in Ely, Nev., on Monday, will cause grief to large numbers of his friends in both Utah and Nevada. The writer knew Mr. Weber well and a more lovable gentleman it has never been his pleasure to meet.
In good and bad fortune, in times when he had reason to rejoice and in times when his heart must have been heavy, Mr. Weber was always the same brave, smiling, kindly gentleman. His death takes a sturdy shoulder from the Nevada wheel, a staunch friend from hundreds of her people.

Mr. Weber was not born in the west, but he had lived in this country so long that he was accounted a part of it. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., fifty-eight years ago. In 1875 he left that city and went to Nevada, where he remained for the remainder of his life.
His first western experience was as a housekeeper in Carson City, but after a few years there he moved to Ely and engaged in mining. He was so engaged at the time of his passing.

The dead man had long been prominent in the politics of his state. He was a delegate from Nevada to the Democratic national conventions of 1884, 1888, 1892, 1896, 1900 and 1904. In 1900 and in 1904 he traveled east with the Utah Democratic delegation and on both occasions he won every member of the party with his courtesy and his thoughtfulness for the comfort of others.

JAMES M. GALVIN, REPORTER.
THE MAN who made it possible for Joseph W. Folk to gain national prominence by sending the St. Louis hoodlums to prison, a prominence that has practically won for him, if he lives, the governorship of one of the greatest states in the Union, died the other day at St. Joseph, Mo. It is entirely probable that the name of Joseph W. Folk is known to a hundred thousand American citizens, where the name of James M. Galvin is known to one. Yet Mr. Folk would not occupy the position he holds in the public eye today had it not been for this same Galvin.

Who was Galvin? A newspaper reporter, a worker who died in the harness; for he was in St. Joseph reporting a Republican state convention when the hoodlums came to him. A few years ago Galvin, then, as at the time of his death, employed on a St.
Louis paper, wrote a hundred-word story in which he gave some intimations regarding hoodlums in the St.
Louis house of delegates. On the day that the publication appeared Mr.
Folk sent for him. Galvin had become familiar with the proceedings of the boodle combine. He was prepared to lay them before the circuit attorney.

A dispatch says, regarding the conference between Galvin and Folk:
"The revelations there made led to the discovery of the boodle fund locked up in the vaults of two trust companies; its seizure by Folk, and then the crash came and indictment after indictment was returned against aidmen and promoters, followed by the flight of Millions, Wal-wright, to Europe and Merrell and Kratz to Mexico, and the return of Merrell and Krutz to California. Galvin's story had induced the national administration to have the extradition laws amended so as to include bribery. When this was accomplished, boodler after boodler confessed. Six aidmen in penitentiaries, four are being held as witnesses for the state and two are fugitives—Walwright and Madson."
Of course the information furnished to the prosecutor by the reporter would have amounted to nothing if the prosecutor had not been willing to take advantage of it. In giving credit to Galvin it is not necessary to withhold any from Folk. The latter, as all the nation knows, has been fearless to a degree that has turned him the admiration of all the people. The point we desire to make is that Galvin was the original directing agent, and he should be remembered for it.

CARNEGIE A HERO.

IN CONSPICUOUS PLACES on the walls of the guest rooms in Skibo castle, according to an American who has just been entertained there, Andrew Carnegie has posted this legend:
"Please do not tip the servants." It is apparent that Mr. Carnegie is desirous of holding on to a part of his recently-established hero fund. That he will be entitled to it no one who has been in England will deny, for in England the tipping evil has grown to monstrous proportions. The man who sets his face publicly on English soil against tipping is assuredly brave beyond ordinary understanding.

The practice of tipping house servants in England is universal. Guests are expected to hand each servant from $2 to $5 on their departure, whether the servants be particularly accommodating or not. It will be seen that visits to country houses have become expensive luxuries. If what the American friend of Mr. Carnegie tells us is true, it has heretofore been extravagantly expensive to stop at Skibo castle. We are told that Mr. Carnegie assigns to each of his guests a valet, a footman and a coachman. In the dining room every night at dinner there are said to be eight footmen who are kept busy pouring champagne. Add to this list the numerous butlers, gardeners, gamekeepers and the like and it becomes apparent that with tipping in full force and effect it were far cheaper to stop at a first-class hotel than with Mr. Carnegie.

But that sort of thing is all over at Skibo now. It is possible to visit Mr.
Carnegie without any fear of bankruptcy. The laird of the manor is entitled to congratulations for his attitude. It is to be hoped that the custom will spread to other English country houses and to other lands.

DEADLY BEASTS AND REPTILES.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT has just finished gathering its annual statistics regarding the number of people killed by reptiles and wild animals in India during the year ended Dec. 31, 1903, and the number of animals killed by hunters and others. A writer in Cosmos says the figures are not very encouraging to the government officials.
In spite of great killing-pests that have been conducted from time to time the human victims continue more numerous than the reptile and animal victims, though the reptile statistics cannot at present be obtained that is, the number of reptiles killed.

Says the Cosmos writer:
"The figures for 1903 are as follows: 23,164 persons killed by the bites of serpents; 1,946 by tigers; 271 by wolves; 953 by bears, leopards and panthers. A total of 25,499 victims."
"As for losses of domestic animals, cattle, sheep, etc., they are summed up thus: 4,600 animals killed by reptiles; 33,211 by leopards and panthers; 30,555 by tigers; 4,719 by wolves; 2,387 by hyenas; 4,900 by bears. A total of 83, 822."

"Reprisals for these massacres and preventive measures looking toward future improvement have been feeble enough, as may be judged by the following figures:
"Thirty-eight thousand hunters have been out, but their success has been moderate. They have killed: 1,321 tigers, including sixty-three solitary ones; 4,413 leopards; 1,550 bears, 2,373 wolves, 706 hyenas, 4,300 miscellaneous beasts. Or, in all, 14,983 animals. There are no statistics of serpents. This figure, compared to that of the victims, men and animals, is nothing to boast of."

It appears that more people are killed in India every year by reptiles and animals than in many extensive wars. In all the revolutions that have occurred in South America in two decades the loss of life has not reached the total from India herewith presented. Evidently the English rulers of India must bestir themselves to keep down the mortality list.

The Democrats of Washington chose very wisely indeed when they nominated former Senator George Turner for governor on Tuesday. If any Democrat can carry the state of Washington that Democrat is Senator Turner.
He is one of the biggest men in his party, east or west, north or south, and he is thoroughly entitled to the respect and confidence of his fellow citizens. It is not unreasonable for us to express the belief that there is more than a fighting chance for the Democrats to win in Washington this year.

Of course if a miner had been assaulted and stabbed outside of Carson county, there would be no thought of calling out the militia. As it is, however, we advise members of the national guard to make no engagements for the immediate future. They may be sent to Carson county at any moment.

The formal opening of a New York church saloon was closed by singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." And then we presume Mr.
Brethren, in order to start things off properly, invited all and sundry spectators to line up and licker up.

A Russian living in Pennsylvania was called upon the other day to choose between going to an insane asylum or returning to Russia. He chose the asylum. That fellow certainly is not crazy.

yer go in dat yard yer liable ter git bit by a bulldog. Would yer radder have a bulldog bite yer or a bulldog?

The Tramp's Taste.
Tramp (at the kitchen door)—Can you give me something to eat, lady?
Lady—There's the woodpile.
Tramp—I can't eat wood, lady.
Lady—You can't eat wood, can you?
Tramp—Y'd rather eat it, lady. Good morning.—Detroit Free Press.

Comparative Degree.
Lady—I think you are the worst looking tramp I have ever seen.
Tramp—Ma'am, it's out in the presence of such uncommon beauty that I looks so bad.—Scraps.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Ira O. Rhoades was the hostess yesterday at a beautiful luncheon given at the Country club in compliment to Mrs. Everett Buckingham and Miss Dauster. The guests were seated at the long table in the large dining room, and red sweet peas in profusion decorated it. Candelabra at either end lighted the board and covers were laid for twelve. The friends present to meet the guests of honor were Mrs.
Murray of Omaha, Mrs. J. E. Galtiger, Mrs. George Y. Wallace, Mrs. O. W.
Powers, Mrs. F. D. Bidwell, Mrs.
Len Elliott, Mrs. Hubbard Reed, Mrs.
Robert Glendinning and Mrs. J. E.
Bamberger.

Another pleasant luncheon was given by Mrs. Ellsworth Daggett also at the Country club following the meeting of the Bridge club in the morning. The players and guests at the luncheon numbered eight. Mrs. Henry Irwin, Mrs. Windsor V. Rice, Mrs. David
Keith, Mrs. W. S. McCormick, Mrs. M.
S. Woodward, Mrs. Victor M. Clement and Mrs. Megath were present.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Spencer entertained at a dinner Sunday evening in honor of Sam Meers, who is spending a few weeks in the city. The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Piper, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Spencer and H. C.
Whitney.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stingley and

GARDNER DAILY STORE NEWS.

There may be other clothes as good as ours.
But it is our way of selling that makes them better to you than any other kind.
Our moderate way of marking them and our assurance of satisfaction in the matter of wear.

Suits $5 to $35, some at greatly reduced prices.

IF YOU WANT CASH
FOR YOUR
BAD DEBTS
WE CAN GET IT.

No matter how large they are or in what town, city, state or territory.
If we did not know we could collect your bills, we certainly would not be paying out money to advertise.
We advertise because we want your claims for collection. Our ability to make collections where all others have failed has enabled us to build up the largest collection business in the world.
This ad is sure to bring many claims to our offices for collection, and we are just as sure to collect these claims and make money in commissions thereon.
